Where Her Light Still Dances:

She was the warmth of every room,
A joyful, loving, radiant light,
With steady hands that made flowers bloom
And kept the family anchor tight.

A home where open doors stayed wide,
Where stories flowed and laughter rang,
She gathered everyone inside
And danced along to songs she sang.

She loved the thrill of game-day cheer,
The quiet joy of a well-read book,
The ancient secrets unearthed and clear
In every archaeological look.

She had a spark, a cheeky smile,
A twist-and-shout that stole the show.
Rock 'n' roll in her own grand style,
With heart as rich as soil below.

A devoted mother, a grandma dear,
The roots that held our family grand,
Her loving spirit stays right here,
And holds us gently by the hand.
